Artist Profile:
My 'furry' persona is a realistic Deinonychus, a species of feathered raptor dinosaur. She appears in my art in both anthro and non-anthro form, though her non-anthro form is the one I most strongly identify with. My identification with this animal is more of a mental quirk and little more, but a strong one nevertheless. I don't consider myself a therian or a furry, just a girl who likes to play dinosaurs.

In real life, I am a female college student almost finished with a biology degree, and working currently as a freelance artist with a preference for scientific illustration. I get published occasionally. I'm into video games, science, mathematics, literature, science fiction, and some aspects of politics and history (especially the World Wars era). If you want to see my other art (mostly paleoart), check out my gallery at DeviantArt.

Please feel free to constructively critique my art. I love to hear feedback not just on what I did well, but what I can improve upon.

I move stuff to scraps periodically, so don't forget to check there too!

Livestreaming at the moment

I'll be livestreaming for the next little bit. Working on a complex dinosaur illustration, but I may end up taking requests or cheap sketch commissions later on. (No promises, though.) I love having people to chat with to keep me entertained though, so please do stop by if you're interested!

Here, have some accidental gift art, and I mean accidental by the fact that the markings I drew made it look like your raptor: http://www.furaffinity.net /view/5419747/
